CONVERSION CORNER

Ice Troll by John Shaffer

This conversion uses a Stone Troll as its basis. First, clip the Stone Troll weapon hands off at the wrist and bend the arms into place. Take the right Daemon Prince hand and pin it to the right arm. The left hand of the Keeper of Secrets goes on the left Troll arm. Make an ice club out of a cone of dried putty. Use your hobby knife to chisel away at the surface, then glue the club to the hands. Carefully remove the teeth from the Stone Troll head and replace them with the ends of two Tuskgor horns. You will have to putty around the tusks to make lips. Cut the lower jaw off of the Dire Wolf head and glue it atop of the Troll head. Trimming will be necessary. Make the fur cloak by "sewing" three plastic fur cloaks together with fine gauge wire. First, use a pin vise to make the holes. Second, connect the pieces. Third, glue the cloak to the Troll's back. Putty in the gaps, and you're ready to paint.

BEASTMEN CENTIGORS

Merged together by the mutating powers of the Wastes, Centigors are a disturbing cross between four-legged creatures such as horses or oxen and the bipedal Chaos Beastmen.

TAU FLEET

The Tau are sweeping across the galaxy in a bid to expand their civilization!

Below: Orca Class Escort

KASS'L (ORCA) CLASS ESCORT

The Orca was designed to provide the Tau fleet with an Escort. Possessing a small gravitic drive too weak to cross interstellar distances, the Orca is transported within a Capital Ship's gravitic sheath. Once unleashed, however, Orcas are powerful gunships able to contend with any Imperial or Ork class.

A vital breakthrough in Tau science, the Explorer class made the expansion of the Tau empire possible. For nearly a hundred tau'cyr, the Explorer was the only class of ship continually in production. Conflict with the Orks began the class's death knell. The Explorer was not a specialist warship, and its weaponry was incapable of keeping Ork Terror Ships and Kill Kroozers at a distance. As a consequence, work on other elements of the Tau fleet (such as the Merchant class) was accelerated.

The pinnacle of Tau technology, Hero class ships are the product of space warfare experience during the Damocles Gulf Crusade. The Tau were determined that they should have a ship that could match the Imperial Lunar class. While unable to meet that goal fully, the Hero class is a credible ship of the line.

KIR'QATH (DEFENDER) CLASS ESCORT

Just as the Hero is the Tau response to the Imperial Lunar class, the Defender is an answer to the Imperial Sword class. The Defender is the only true Escort in the Tau fleet and is used in squadrons to provide close support for the larger vessels.

The Merchant Class Starship requires the Tau Explorer Side 2, Tau Explorer Turrets, and Tau Hero Side shown on these pages.

IL'FANNOR (MERCHANT) CLASS STARSHIP

The Merchant class was originally developed to be the new workhorse of the Tau empire. Conflict with the Orks caused significant revision of the design, incorporating field modifications that allowed virtually all of the cargo space to be converted for weapons systems if needed. The continued requirements of the fleet ensured that the Merchant class remained predominantly a warship until the Hero class was in full production.

CADIAN & CATACHAN NEW RELEASES

Reinforcements for the Imperial Guard arrive this month: Tech-Priest Engineeseers, Cadian Snipers, and Sanctioned Psykers. Engineeseers repair armored vehicles, Snipers disrupt enemy formations, and Sanctioned Psykers use a variety of powers to smite the Emperor's foes. All are valuable additions to any Imperial Guard force.
